THE UNSUNG HEROES OF BREMERTON

As Rebecca and Lucy are busy catapulting Bremerton into the wine world, there are some extraordinary others lurking behind the scenes, truly deserving of some recognition for their contributions to the successes of Bremerton. My only question now is who to nominate, as there are quite a few of us who stand to be applauded!

To the hat it is, and... (drum role)... the winner is... Janine Schutz – our effervescent face of Bremerton's Cellar Door. Janine brings an element of fun, on a rather quirky level, to our front of house. Pizza maker extraordinaire, Janine spends her days at Bremerton ensuring every visitor leaves with great memories of their experience. Long time resident of Langhorne Creek, Janine is ready to share with you her knowledge of the region, her extensive wine terminology (newest term in her dictionary – herbaceous), and of course what she is truly passionate about, our great range of Bremerton wines. Outside of work, Janine embraces the fashion world with regular visits to her Adelaide-based stylist. On the home front, sorry fella's, this one is taken. Married to the illustrious Rusty, mummy of two, and nanny to the beautiful Keely! Janine perfectly defines the term 'high on life', and we are truly grateful for the excellent job she does. Well done Janine, keep up the brilliant work!

More on our unsung heroes next time,

Cheers!

CELEBRATIONS ABROAD!

The Willson family are gearing up and heading to Scotland to celebrate the 100th year anniversary of the Selkirk Colonial Society.

Selkirk Colonial Society was founded in 1910 by exiles from the town of Selkirk, Scotland. Their prime objective was to provide a flag – a "Golden Banner" – and send it back to their home town.

This 'standard' would become both a powerful symbol and rallying point for Selkirk's exiles who return each year in June, from all parts of the world, to attend the Selkirk Common Riding, a festival that has been celebrating the Battle of Flodden for well over 500 years.

Lucy and Rebecca's Grandfather who came from Selkirk was a great supporter of the colonial society and each year the family presents a medal to the person chosen to represent the exiles and carry their standard during the celebrations.

We wish them a safe trip, and look forward to hearing their tales on return home from this special time!

Bon voyage!

TO LONDON AND BEYOND

Packing up for the London Wine Trade fair this year was quite different for me. Usually it is part of a 4 week working trip and I am often on my own... this time I not only had 23 kg's of brochures, but I also had my partner Ben... fortunately we are on a 6 week trip, and 4½ weeks of it is holidays!

Our trip started with visits to our friends at Hedley Wright Wine Merchants in Bishops Stortford, for those of you that get wine sent to friends/relatives in the UK these are the people that make it happen! We had a lovely dinner and tasting, it was in a church building and I was speaking from the altar (there is a first time for everything)!

The London Wine Trade Fair was held over three days where I managed to see many of our customers to thank them for their ongoing support, as well as meeting new ones. It truly is an international affair and I even saw our representatives from Ontario Canada! Ben managed to taste his way around the world in 3 days!

Our work finished with a tasting in Edinburgh with our friends at Great Grog. The wines were a hit, and I was proud to be showing them.

But now the holidays start and I write this whilst sitting in a coffee shop (free WIFI!) in Ambleside in the Lakes District. It is 25 degrees and the sun is shining... I cannot believe it is the UK!

Till next time,

WHAT ARE THEY SAYING?

2009 VERDELHO

There is little point in searching for this variety unless you are committed to finding a perfect example. Bremerton's pineapple chunk and Mohito-tang Verdelho wakens the senses and punctures your taste buds with innocent enthusiasm and unbridled joie de vivre. This grape rarely refreshes as well as it does in this wine and there is nothing more to add. So call off the search party, you have found your quarry.

2008 TAMBLYN

A triumph from a heatwave year. Mellowing meaty, berry charms on the bouquet followed by a balanced concentrated palate that's smooth with soft tannin. Already drinks well.

Huon Hooke

2006 RESERVE CABERNET

"Slowly becoming one of the classic wines of Australia"

When we tasted this it was still very young and still building flesh. It tastes of pure, sweet, cedary blackcurrent and has a minty, sawdusty aftertaste. Already, its showing gorgeous tannin structure and has all the elegant power the label is becoming renowned for. It needs time, but its an outstanding wine.

2006 B.O.V SHIRAZ / CABERNET

96pts

A totally delicious array of black fruits complexed by splashes of spice and dark chocolate, the tannins plush and soft, the palate long and satisfying.

TASTE OF SYDNEY

Lucy and I recently packed our bags and headed to Sydney for the "foodie event of the summer" – The Taste of Sydney.

With the responses and successes received from the 2009 event, how could we not!

Together with our great friends from Chalk Hill winery we brought across the best wines from the Fleurieu Peninsula (well we thought so!), and set up in the beautiful surrounds of Centennial Parklands.

We were truly exhausted at the end of the 4 day event, not to mention gaining a few kg's. How can you blame us when we were alongside some of the city's best chefs from the finest restaurants.

Bremerton wines proved most popular once again, as we headed home, a little later than expected due to a minor flight misdemeanour (we missed it), with empty hands. We had no wine left over to bring home, if only we did we may have been able to persuade the taxi driver to drive a little faster!

Thank you to everyone who came along to visit the Bremerton team at Centennial Park, we look forward to seeing you all in Sydney next year!

GUERRILLA WINE BAR

Earlier this year, Tasting Australia held one of its largest events, the Bank SA Feast for the Senses, on the banks of the River Torrens, Adelaide. Bremerton took part – but with a difference. Deciding to break tradition, step out of the square, and embark on a wine bar / tasting concept, we joined forces with three other wineries, from two different regions, at one super venue, and The Guerrilla Wine Bar was formed.

Bremerton met with Cardinham Estate and Stringy Brae, both from the Clare region, and Gipsie Jack our neighbouring winery from Langhorne Creek, at what quickly became known as 'a pretentious free' zone. The Guerrilla Wine Bar was not your average tasting wine bar. There were tempting tapas, velvet vocals with a rough rootsy edge performed live by the legendary

GUERRILLA WINE BAR

Kelly Menhennett, and most importantly, an A-Class wine list which included Halliday high raters, world beaters and leading lights. Sirens were raised, and prizes delivered, but as the two day public event came to a close, the team of primates saluted as the Guerrilla Wine Bar de-masted its flag. The Guerrilla Wine Bar packed up for hibernation, but this concept has not been put to rest. Keep your eyes open at future events, for when The Guerrilla Wine Bar and its troops, returns!

HEARD THAT ONE BEFORE...

Tom, living the dream of the 80's in the vineyard.

Vintage 2010 will be remembered for many things. Michael Jackson singing his final "Beat it"; the SAPS – South Australian Political Sex Scandal and Tiger Woods came to Melbourne "just to play golf".

But the memory which resonates strongest is the temperatures experienced in November 2009. They set all new records with Adelaide experiencing its first ever back to back heat wave. We all thought that this sort of thing wasn't going to happen now that all our politicians had visited Copenhagen.

As with many other wine growing regions, Langhorne Creek felt significant impacts from this weather particularly on fruit set in Cabernet, Malbec and Shiraz.

The resultant yields across all Bremerton's vineyards were well down and as an upshot have produced some astonishing parcels of fruit being harvested. Never before have the vines carried so little fruit, and had the ability to concentrate all their mystical flavour energies into so few berries.

We know all winemakers and marketers say it after every vintage – "Oh this was one of the best seasons I can remember... Blah, blah, blah".

From a vigneron's point of view, there have been plenty of great vintages – but not one season in the last 10 years that has had such amazingly small yields with sublimely perfect ripening conditions leading up to harvest. No rain, no heatwaves during February, no frosts, just warm days and clear cool nights – from a meteorological point of view a bit lack lustre after Christmas.

Ripening occurred over a period of months this vintage, some have said "like the good old days of the 70's and 80's". Well if this is what it used to be like then I'm strapping on my flares, platforms and Wham T-shirt and heading out to the vines.

The fruit then was lucky enough to be delivered to Matilda Plains winery where it was put through the Pellenc Selective Processing Top Secret device which has the ability to sort berries by size, colour, shape and even sexual preference (I do often wonder if anyone reads my articles).

The end result will be 2010 wines with amazing structure and infinite depth, superb colour and full flavour profiles. But I reckon you've all heard that before.

"NOT TOO COOL FOR SCHOOL..."

What a great vintage... so much happening here at Matilda Plains. Not only did we have the excitement of trialing the Pellenc "wonder" processor but we also had the guys from the Australian Wine Research Institute (AWRI) down here doing a Refrigeration Efficiency Project. This was especially exciting for me being Environmental Officer as it gave me an opportunity to have a closer look into our current practices and understand a bit more about our system.

With refrigeration being the biggest source of energy consumption within the winery at approximately 70%, we were more than willing to put our hands up to be part of the project. The team from AWRI was able to determine things like the energy required for fermentation and monitor brine flows that occur during this process. We look forward to seeing the results of the project and putting some changes in place that ultimately reduces our electricity and also carbon emissions.

As the year unfolds further we're also hoping to get our teeth into the new wine industry environmental assurance scheme Entwine. This is a voluntary scheme that will assist us in keeping our current practices and environmental management up to date according to recognized standards. Indicators such as tonnes of grapes crushed and waste produced will be submitted. In time hopefully we'll see a decline in waste production and energy consumption. Fingers crossed that with some great feedback from the crew at AWRI we'll see some of those changes in the not too distant future.

Think green,

Environmental Officer

PELLENC SELECTIVE PROCESSING MACHINE

This vintage Matilda Plains Winery had the pleasure of trialling some new and exciting technology for the wine industry. A Selective Processing Winery machine from Pellenc. The two part system allowed a fruit processing alternative to the current crusher/destemmer at the winery.

The first part of the process, the 'Winery' machine allows mechanical sorting of the fruit which separate berries from stalk and other matter (MOG). The whole berries are then sorted via the second part of the process, the 'Vision' machine. This machine involves the use of an electronic 'eye' which can sort individual berries according to the parameters set by the winemaker. These parameters can include berry size and colour density. The processing machine was utilised by Bremerton for select parcels of mainly Shiraz and Cabernet fruit, with a number of comparative trials undertaken on identical parcels of grapes. So far, sensory differences in the trial parcels have been quite obvious, showing greater intensity of 'berry' characteristics in the Selective processed wines and a softer palate structure.

CELLAR DOOR HEATS UP!

Who said winter was all doom and gloom? Wood fire, a delicious tasty bowl of homemade soup, tucking into a gourmet pot pie, a glass of your favourite Bremerton wine... beats getting sunburnt if you ask me.

Bremerton has what you are looking for this winter, and welcomes you to visit the Cellar Door where you can experience our wonderful wines, taste fantastic local produce and sit and enjoy the ambience of the renovated stone barn by the warm fire.

We are open 10-5 daily for wine and produce tasting, sales and lunches, including our winter menu which is sure to tantalise your taste buds.

Don't stay couped up inside this winter, come in and meet the friendly, courteous Bremerton team!
